Packages

Writing Quill offers the following types of editing services and you are welcome to choose your needs as per your suitability.

Copy-editing: Rs. 10000

A word-by-word edit addresses grammar, usage, and consistency issues. Copy editors will check for typos and spelling errors along with correcting grammar, language, and syntax errors. Editors will also pay particular attention to punctuation such as commas, semicolons, and quotation marks.

Line Editing: Rs. 20000

Line editing is a more intensive structural edit that focuses on the finer aspects of language – the flow of ideas, transition elements, tone, and style. Line editors expand their efforts to suggest changes to make sentences crisper and tighter by fixing redundancy and verbosity issues while improving awkward sentence and paragraph construction without a full rewrite. We cover the manuscript using a holistic methodology with a review of key aspects of the manuscript: the narrative, vocabulary, structure, characterization, style, and development.

Substantive Editing: Rs. 25,000

Also known as content editing, involves an editor providing detailed feedback on “big-picture” issues. They will refine your ideas, shape your narrative, and help you fix any major plot or character inconsistencies. They will look at just about every element of your story and tell you what works and what does not.

Proofreading: Rs. 10,000

Proofreading gets its name from the “proofs” typesetters produced before the final print run. The text has been laid out into pages, complete with photos, diagrams, tables, etc. Proofreading comes at the end of the publication cycle. It's the final check before the book is printed or, in the case of eBooks, before it is published. For this reason, proofreading is intended to pick up the final typos and spelling mistakes and to correct inconsistencies, like making sure the word "proofreading" is always spelled as one word and not "proof-reading".

👉 Proofreading is only done after the raw manuscript has already been edited.
